Newton strengthens UK Private Client team

Alexandra Dick to join as senior account manager

Newton Investment Management, part of BNY Mellon Asset Management, has appointed Alexandra Dick to the role of senior account manager in the UK Private Client team.

Based in London, Alexandra Dick joined the company on 3 January and reports to Caroline Tye, Head of UK Private Clients. She is part of a team responsible for the maintenance and growth of Newton's private client business and will also directly manage client portfolios.

Prior to joining Newton, Alexandra Dick spent over 10 years working with Goldman Sachs Asset Management on both Emerging Markets and European Equity teams in research and portfolio management roles.

Caroline Tye, Head of UK Private Clients, comments "Newton has served private clients since its founding over 30 years ago. As a core part of our business, private clients are offered a differentiated and high quality investment management service. One benefit includes having access to the single, thematically driven, global investment process and investment team and resources that have delivered strong investment returns to Newton's clients over the longer term."

"We are very committed to delivering a high quality service to all of our clients. Over the past few months we have been steadily strengthening our UK Private Client business with a number of senior appointments. With the wealth of investment experience gained at Goldman Sachs over the last 10 years, Alexandra is another excellent addition to this team."
